From the Pastor's Heart

As we gather for worship today, my prayer is that our hearts are prepared to meet the Lord. We need to encounter the Lord today. Worship does not happen just because we have an order of worship, sing a few songs, pray, take an offering, and hear a sermon. These are components of worship, but whether worship takes place has more to do with the state of the heart. May the Lord have our hearts in a state of humility and in a place where He can work!

“Your Gift Transforms Lives” is the theme for the 2017 Lottie Moon International Mission Offering. As we prepare to give over the course of the next few weeks, may I encourage us to remember the great benefit of participating in and giving to the Lottie Moon Offering! First, it is a cooperative effort among Southern Baptist to strategically put missionaries in the field to engage every people group in the world. By working together and giving together, we can do much more than if we acted alone. Second, it provides us the opportunity to place more missionaries on the field faster. Third, it provides our church the opportunity to personally pray for mission needs and personnel during this month. We will receive a prayer guide next week that will list prayer needs of mission personnel and inform us where they serve. Fourth, we actually are able to personally be part of fulfilling the commands of God's Word from Acts 1:8. There are many other reasons to give, so may we all prayerfully and sacrificially give to the Lottie Moon International Mission Offering.

This morning as part of worship, we will have the opportunity to participate in a Parent/Child Dedication Service. The parents who participate today understand the strategic need of nurturing their children in the Word and ways of the Lord. These couples understand the value of the partnership that takes place between the parents, the Church, and the Lord. Though God has given the primary responsibility of the spiritual, physical, social, and emotional nurturing to the parents, we understand that we all have a unique contribution to make. So, this morning as we begin and continue the journey with these parents, may the Lord give us the joy of watching these precious children grow to love the Lord with all their mind, heart, and soul!

May the Lord bless and keep each one today. May the Lord be glorified and honored in our lives, and may the Holy Spirit empower us to be His witnesses.
